

Short, online courses

The Australian Government's Higher Education Relief Package includes short, online courses for workers who have been affected by COVID-19.

Courses are available in nursing, teaching, health, IT and science. Courses costs are heavily discounted for students and payment can be deferred through HECS-HELP for those who are eligible.

The courses will run for up to six months and will help workers develop new skills to prepare for the new economy after COVID-19. For a list of short courses and their discounted fees visit www.CourseSeeker.edu.au or refer to the Resources page of the CourseSeeker website for further information.
